

Onomatopoeia

The background is a colorful illustration of a rocky coastline. On the left, a large, brown, textured rock formation rises steeply. In the foreground, several smaller, dark brown rocks are scattered in the water. Turquoise waves with white foam are crashing against these rocks, creating splashes and spray. The sky is a vibrant blue with several fluffy white clouds. The overall style is that of a children's educational illustration.

twinkl

Onomatopoeia

The word onomatopoeia comes from two Greek words. It literally translates as 'name I make'.

Does this give you a clue as to what onomatopoeia means?

Onomatopoeia are words that imitate or copy the sound they describe.

Examples of Onomatopoeia

Say these examples out loud.
Can you hear how they copy the sound they are describing?

pop

buzz

bang

hiss

drip

Common Onomatopoeia

Onomatopoeic words are often seen when they are describing the noises made by:

drizzle

water

splash

drip

giggle

voices

growl

chatter

cheep

animals

oink

miaow

crash

collisions

clink

thud

swoosh

air

swish

gasp

Match the Onomatopoeia

Match these onomatopoeic words to the thing they are most likely to describe.

water

animals

voices

purr

splash

baa

grumble

neigh

babble

dribble

Do you agree?

Are there any words that could have gone in more than one category?

Identifying Onomatopoeia

Can you spot the onomatopoeic words in these sentences?
Click each phrase to reveal.

The train spluttered to a halt.

The ribbits of the frog could be heard from the pond.

Birds chirped merrily in the trees.

A breeze wafted by as we sat by the crashing waves.

Rebecca gasped with horror.

We heard the bells jingle on the roof on Christmas Eve.

Why Use It?

Using onomatopoeia can add meaning or dramatic effect to your writing. For example, think about the different image you get in your head for the following sentences:

The car hit the wall with a bump.

The car hit the wall with a crunch.

The car hit the wall with a bang.

The car hit the wall with a whack.

The same action happens every time but the use of onomatopoeia makes some sentences sound like the crash was more severe. You can almost hear the sound made by the car in each example.

Using Onomatopoeia for Effect

Let's explore the different effects that onomatopoeic words have on the meaning of this sentence:

I fell to the floor with a _____.

Have a Go!

How could you use an onomatopoeic word to complete this sentence?
Write as many different ways as possible in two minutes.

The farmyard was alive with the sound of _____.

Start

End

Have a Go!

How could you use an onomatopoeic word to complete this sentence?
Write as many different ways as possible in two minutes.

The waves _____ against the shoreline.

Start

End